VICTORIOUS AT FOOTBALL

Both High School and City Team Beat Visiting Teams.

The Lincoln high school team met the high school eleven from New Lisbon on the football grounds on Saturday and the locals simply wiped up the earth with the visitors, the score standing at the end of the game at 47 to 0 in favor of Grand Rapids. It was so one-sided from start to finish that there was not a time during the game that the visitors stood a ghost of show of scoring, and there was only once or twice that they succeeded in making the required five yards gain. It seemed to be a case of inexperience with the visitors for they seldom missed a chance of fumbling the ball, and when they did get possession of the pigskin they generally lost ground instead of gaining.

Most of the guins by the locals were made by end runs, it having been discovered early in the game that the visitors were slow at blocking these kind of plays, although good guins were also made thru the line.

McLaughlin and Brennan of the local team were pretty badly shaken up during the game but played to the end.

Grand Rapids 6, Stevens Point 5. On Sunday the city team played an aggregation from Stevens Point, and the locals had a hard fight to win, the score standing 6 to 0 in favor of the locals. The weather was ideal for the game and there was a large crowd in attendance to see the sport. Had the local team played with the vigor in the start that they exhibited later in the game it is probable that the visitors would not have scored at all. It was a closely contested game and the spectators were well pleased with the game they witnessed.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

The Botany class has just started the study of wheat rust (Puccinia graminis). Thursday morning the following seniors will have charge of the morning exercises—Amy Cahill, Lillian Jorgenson and George Feltner.

The football game Saturday was a walk away for our boys. The score was 47 to 0. The usual proportion of the crowd paid and the athletic association went $12 in the hole.

The seniors held a class meeting at 4 p. m. last night and elected the following officers for this year: President, Charles Loeffelholz; Vice President, Anna Daly; Secretary, Rose Metzger; Treasurer, Ernest Nimitz. The exercises given by three seniors last Thursday morning were very interesting. The program was as follows:

A Japanese Naval Base of Sasebo—Ernest Gilkey. Pansantry in Russia—Charles Loeffelholz.

The Crooks in the Unique Russian Troopers—Fern Love. The "Laurel" program Monday night was excellent, which was as follows:

Music—Rose Wippmann. Recitation—Bert Lambertson. Book Report—Fern Olandos. Current Topics—Loretta McCarthy. Recitation—Genevieve Carden. Some excellent extemporaneous two minute speeches were made by several members of the society. The Secretary, Blanche Mickelson was sworn in and six new members were initiated.

Warm Weather in November. Warm and balmy weather will usher in November, according to Hicks but after six days' rain and cloudiness will prevail, followed shortly by cold weather. Guests of autumn winds and rain on the 8th and 9th will be succeeded by cold and probably snow, with frosty nights. A storm period will culminate on the 14th and 16th and then marked change to warmer may be expected, followed by heavy snow and cold. Another storm period will be here on the 19th and 20th but warmth will follow for a brief time and then cold and snow is scheduled. The most severe and general storms are predicted for the 24th and 25th, the first stage being warm rains and the last of decidedly cold character. Show will take the place of rain and stiff gales from the northwest will rush over the lake regions and thru the interior, generally, bringing a good sized November cold wave.

Mr. Donnelly's Speech. The political talk given by Mr. Donnelly at the opera house last Wednesday evening was attended by a large crowd, and the speaker of the evening proved himself to be a first class entertainer. He confined himself to national and state matters, and it was evident that he had his men sized up in good shape. There are few men in the state who can make a political speech as entertaining as can Mr. Donnelly.

Good Minstrels. The show given by the Gus Sun company at the opera house last Thursday evening was a good one in every respect. There was plenty of good music, singing and dancing, while many of the jokes were apparently of more recent origin than is usual at an entertainment of this sort.

Better Than Pills. The question has been asked—In what way are Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets superior to the ordinary cathartic and liver pills? Our answer is—They are easier and more pleasant to take and their effect is so gentle and so agreeable that one hardly realizes that it is produced by a medicine. They not only move the bowels but improve the appetite and aid the digestion. For sale at 25 cents per bottle by Otto's Pharmacy.

Death of Loretta Cummings.

Little Loretta Cummings, who was injured about four weeks ago by being shot in the head with a pistol, died on Sunday. This was a most remarkable case. While cases where people have been injured in the brain and then recovered are not unknown, they are exceedingly rare. This little girl was shot in the top of the head, the bullet going directly down thru the brain. When an examination was made of the wound it was found that the bullet had passed directly thru the brain and lodged in the base of the skull. To remove it would have been an impossibility without causing the immediate death of the patient, so it was decided to allow it to remain. After this she gradually grew better and all fever left her until there was every indication that she would recover. However, about four days before her death she began to show symptoms that infection had set in and she continued to grow worse until the end came on Sunday.

The funeral was held yesterday, the remains being taken to Babcock for burial. The family have the sympathy of the community in their affliction.

The Glasgow of Canada

The following clipping was received by the Tribune by mail and may prove of interest to our readers: "There is a little city named Port Arthur, in Ontario, located on the north shore of Lake Superior, which its citizens designate as 'The Glasgow of Canada.' Port Arthur has the game and there was a large crowd in attendance to see the sport. Had the local team played with the vigor in the start that they exhibited later in the game it is probable that the visitors would not have scored at all. It was a closely contested game and the spectators were well pleased with the game they witnessed."

The street railways, the telephone and electric lighting system and an excellent water power plant are owned by the municipality of Port Arthur. The telephone system was owned by a private corporation for seventeen years, at the end of which time there were ninety-eight instruments in use in the town at $25 for residence and $35 for business purposes as the annual rate. After two years of municipal ownership the subscribers have increased to 400—with half a hundred applicants waiting for further extensions—and the rate has been reduced to $12 and $24 for residence and business purposes respectively.

The municipally-owned trolley lines carry passengers over seven miles for a five-cent fare—between Port Arthur and Port William. Over 100,000 passengers were carried in July, with a total population of 12,000 to draw upon, and the enterprise makes a neat profit of the city. The water power available in the city is 6000 a year, besides saving a city expenditure of $5,000 annually for fuel and other incidentals. The city's electric lighting system also makes a profit.

The railway and lighting services are managed by three commissioners elected by the citizens; the telephone system by a municipal committee. Port Arthur will clear $25,000 this year from its municipal enterprises.

May Form Company.

A deal is on by which the Witter house and the Hotel Dixon may be purchased by a company composed of E. J. Whitney, Oscar Hathaway and Charles A. Dixon. During an interview with Mr. Whitney this morning that gentleman stated that the deal had not been closed as yet and that it could not be stated for certain that it would be. He also stated that no change would be made in the rates at either hotel if the company were formed.

Farm House Burned.

Jacob Lefbel of the town of Aunburdale lost his dwelling and barn by fire one day last week. He was insured in the Seneca, Sigol and Rudolph fire insurance company, which adjusted the loss at $1,840.49. The insurance in this case will be a very handy thing as almost all of Mr. Lefbel's effects were burned.

Anderson Found Guilty.

Fred Anderson, the man who shot and killed Peter Jepson at Black River Falls, had his trial last week and was found guilty of murder in the second degree. Jepson was from City Point and was tending bar at Black River Falls and Anderson, the man who did the shooting was a tramp.

To the People of Nekosia.

The Grand Rapids Entertainment course have tickets on sale at A. E. Lapham's drug store in Nekosia. We should be glad the people of Nekosia patronize, so far as convenient this course of entertainments. They are all of a high grade, and $1.50 for the six entertainments is certainly quite reasonable.

HALF-BREDS SCARED.

They Ask Mr. Cotey to Take Place on Ticket.

Marshfield Times.—The half-bred candidates on the republican ticket from assemblyman to coroner have become greatly frightened since the canvass of the county, at the attitude the voters are taking toward them, and are now convinced that they made a mistake, when they let the word go out that they did not need or want the support of the National Republican voters in this county. These same men, who at the county convention held in this city two weeks ago, refused to allow the name of a single National Republican on the county ticket; after promising them two places on the same, are now timidly side stepping in every direction, and cutting up all kinds of queer antics, and making all kinds of rash promises, to one of the men who was turned down at the convention, if he will only accept a place on the ticket and help to elect the other candidates.

At the convention here A. B. Cotey of Pittsville, candidate for the nomination of register of deeds, and C. E. Foster of Grand Rapids, who was looking after the office of sheriff, were given to understand by a prominent LaFollette delegate that they would be given a place on the ticket. These gentlemen were turned down cold and after the convention adjourned were laughed at for their presumption in thinking for a minute that anyone but LaFollette men would be placed in nomination. The people of Pittsville, who have had no representation on the county ticket for many years, are now always given the party a running majority at the polls, were indignant when they learned of the contemptible way in which their townsmen had been cast aside, and their indignation became so great that air wives of the same were vented to the ears of the county leaders of the administration, and they became frightened for the welfare of the county ticket. A powwow of the chiefs was held at Grand Rapids Tuesday morning, which was attended by E. E. Welch, Herman Wippmann, Theo. Brazee and others, and it was decided to drop Vinton G. Nason of the town of Lincoln, the candidate of register of deeds, and ask Mr. Cotey to fill the vacancy. Mr. Cotey was called up over the telephone and informed of the deal, and shortly after was called upon by E. A. Upham and Theo. Brazee, who had been sent post haste to close the deal and tell Mr. Cotey what a fine fellow he was now that they needed him to save the ticket.

The Pittsville man took the matter under advisement and on Wednesday morning he notified the gentlemen who had so suddenly become interested in his welfare, that he did not care to act as their dupe, and as they had not seen fit to place him in nomination at the convention, he would positively decline to accept it at this late date. The word had been sent out from Grand Rapids that Mr. Cotey would go on the ticket, the administration men supposing of course that their word was law, and when that circle should be given the ruin of power again. It is stated that certain Democrats have announced their intention of voting for Gov. La Follette because he is a fighter. It is not an exhibition of superior intelligence to offer a reason of this character for deserting the party of the people in this campaign. It is virtually an admission that the bigger the bully the more respect should be commanded. The state of Wisconsin has prospered in days when its affairs were not directed by a fighting governor and it will continue to prosper when consideration for the rights of all characterize the executive conduct. Let us have peace. Stand by George W. Peck.

Stand by Peck.

Kenosha Gazette.—There is no reason why the Democrats of Wisconsin should refuse to vote for George W. Peck for governor. He record as a chief executive entitles him to the consideration of every man who takes pride in the resources and commercial prosperity of the state and it is but fair to assume that there will be an entire absence of discontent among the people and distrust in financial circles should he be given the reins of power again. It is stated that certain Democrats have announced their intention of voting for Gov. La Follette because he is a fighter. It is not an exhibition of superior intelligence to offer a reason of this character for deserting the party of the people in this campaign. It is virtually an admission that the bigger the bully the more respect should be commanded. ### FARMER HANGS HIMSELF.

No Cause can be Discovered for the Rash Deed.

Perry Forslund, who resided on a farm about eight miles northwest of this city in the town of Sigel, committed suicide on Sunday by hanging himself in the barn, sometime between ten and twelve o'clock. The family are unable to give any reason why he should have taken his own life, as nothing unusual had occurred. Mr. Forslund went to the barn about 10 o'clock in the morning. Nothing was thought of the matter until one of the girls went there about noon to feed the horses. It was then found that the door of the barn was forced open the dead body of Mr. Forslund was found partly hanging and partly lying, with a rope around the neck and life extinct. From the appearance of things it was apparent that he had climbed to the hay loft, lost the rope about his neck, and jumped. The rope was so long that he was partly resting on the floor, but his neck was broken, indicating that he had died instantly. Mr. Forslund was a man 48 years of age and a native of Sweden, but has lived in the town of Sigel for the past sixteen years. He is survived by a wife and seven children, the youngest of which is only a year old. The funeral occurred on Tuesday, the remains being interred in the Forest Hill cemetery in this city, Rev. C. A. Rosander conducting the services.

Consistent Politics.

Now that the supreme court has decided not to take a hand in the political row that is in progress in the republican party, it is amusing to watch the squirm that some of our contemporaries indulge in when they try to get back into line for the present governor. A few weeks ago he was a political tricker, a man who had fraudulently used the people's money in maintaining a gigantic political machine, a man who had no thought except personal aggrandizement, a man with populist ideas, a democrat, a demagogue, a man who stole the people's time by rhyming about the state making political speeches when he should be at home attending to the affairs of the state. Now they have forgotten all this and are telling their readers that it would be better to vote for this incarnation of all the political evils that have ever been invented than for a clean, honest, upright man like Peck. In their most rabid moments they have not succeeded in even inventing anything that would be to the detriment of Gov. W. Peck.

Now the Tribune has no ill will against either a walnut or a half-breed so long as they are sincere in their beliefs. We know that a large majority of the people are democrats at heart. They believe in equal rights for all and special privileges to none. This is one of the fundamental principles of democracy. They do not believe in a protective tariff as is evidenced by their desire to buy their goods where they can get them the cheapest. However, we do consider a man a pretty cheap guy who is running a newspaper and will put in two solid years calling their governor all the hard names they can think of, and then flip over and for four weeks advise their readers to vote for this same man.

There is nothing in the action of the supreme court that would justify any one who has opposed LaFollette in supporting him now. If he was a political tricker, a man who had fraudulently used the people's money, a man who had no thought except personal aggrandizement, a man with populist ideas, a democrat, a demagogue, a man who stole the people's time by rhyming about the state making political speeches when he should be at home attending to the affairs of the state, we cannot see how he is any different now. He has not made any restitution of the public funds, he has not discharged any of his game warden, nor has he stepped in his talk against the state's faction. If it was wrong then it is wrong now.

Are the editors of these same papers so cowardly that they dare not say what they think to be right? Is it a desire to be on the loaded wagon when the votes are counted, or is it money? Whatever it is that influences these weather vane of newspaper, the readers must have a queer opinion of the man that governs their destiny. We consider that a republican is just as good as a democrat if he betrays himself, but a man who is inconsistent and tells his readers that a man is a crook one day and advises them to vote for him the next, has no place in honest journalism.

Democrats Claim County.

Marshfield Times.—John P. Humo, who was private secretary to former Senator William P. Vilas, and who now lives at Marshfield, was at the Plankinton house yesterday, and discussed the political situation in Wood county.

"When Mr. Connor, the La Follette chairman, makes predictions regarding the success of his state ticket," said Mr. Humo, "it might be well to call his attention to the fact that his own county is going to go democratic. This is not an idle jest. I have carefully investigated the situation, and I am as certain as a man can be of anything that Wood county is going to repudiate LaFolletteism without question. We will roll up a big majority for Peck, regardless of Mr. Connor's efforts."—Milwaukee Sentinel Oct. 10.

Cause of Lockjaw.

Lockjaw, or tetanus, is caused by a bacillus or germ which exists plentifully in street dirt. It is inactive so long as exposed to the air, but when carried beneath the skin as in the wounds caused by percussion caps or by rusty nails, and when the air is excluded the germ is roused to activity and produces the most violent poison known. These germs may be destroyed and all danger of lockjaw avoided by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm freely as soon as the injury is received. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and causes cuts, bruises and like injuries to heal without maturation and in one third the time required by the usual treatment.

GEORGE W. PECK.
Candidate for Governor.

The Tribune presents to its readers this week portraits of the different officers that have been nominated on the Democratic ticket. We are glad to be able to present to our readers such a clean and unbiased lot of men. There is not a politician in this lot. They are men whom the office has sought. None of them are either professional office holders or office seekers, and in placing them in office the people of Wood County may feel certain of having a business administration.

The affairs of both the State and County have so long been in the hands of professional politicians that

FRANK LEUSCHEN,
Candidate for County Clerk.

It should be a relief to every voter to know that the affairs of the State and County will be run in the same manner as any business enterprise. No man need have any fear of voting the Democratic ticket this fall. The men who are on the ticket are the kind of men we meet in everyday life, and are the kind that transact the business of the town and mercantile establishments of our city.

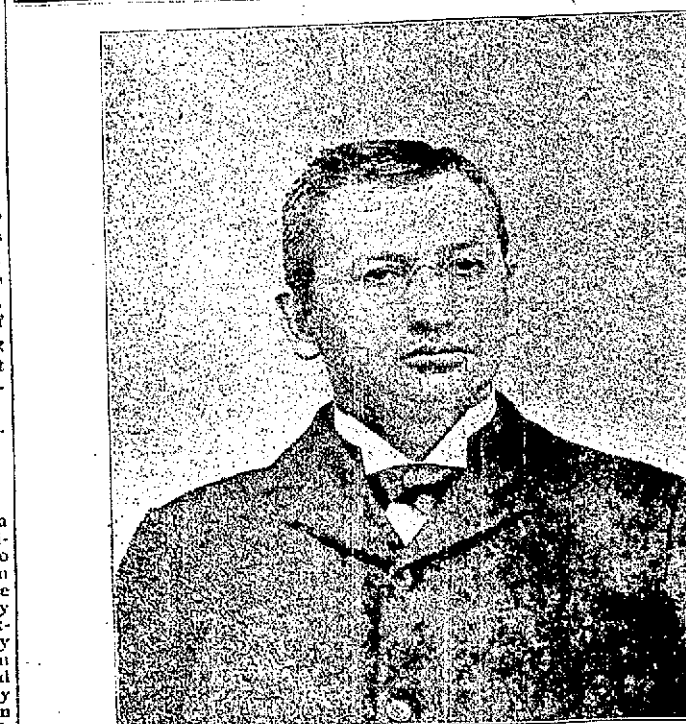

Amos E. Gormer.

In selecting Mr. Gormer as the nominee for Assemblyman to represent

CHARLES S. WHITTLESEY,
Candidate for Clerk of Court.

the people of Wood county the Democrats may justly feel proud. He has served one term in the State legislature as Member of Assembly and during the two years he was in office no man ever said one word either against his character or integrity. As a representative of the people he was an ideal assemblyman. Mr. Gormer has been a resident of Wood county for nearly twenty years. He is a lawyer means a vote for a man who is well capable and able to properly fill the office and will undoubtedly do so.

AMOS E. GERMER,

M. G. Fleckenstein.

M. G. Fleckenstein, the candidate for Register of Deeds on the Democratic ticket, is no stranger to the people of Wood county. Mr. Fleckenstein held the office of county treasurer for two years during 1899-1900, and it has often been stated by republicans and democrats alike that the county never had a more upright, competent and honest official than Mr. Fleckenstein. He is a man of good education and one fully competent to hold any office that the people may see fit to tender him. It is with pride and confidence that we present the name of Mr. Fleckenstein. Mr. Fleckenstein is one of the old residents of Marshfield. He has virtually grown up with the town and been identified with its interests for many years.

Mr. Fleckenstein is one of the men who will run strongest in the town where he is best known, and there can be no better recommendation for any man than this fact. There are few men in the party better qualified for public office than Mr. Fleckenstein, and in voting for him the people of the county may feel absolutely certain that they are putting a man into office who will discharge the duties as well as they could possibly be done. Vote for the democratic candidate for Register of Deeds and you will cast a ballot for a man who cannot be excelled in any way.

Fred C. Henke.

Fred C. Henke is one of the honest farmers of Sigel, where he has lived for the past twenty years. Mr. Henke is not a politician in any sense of the word and he has never sought office at any time. In giving the nomination to Mr. Henke for the office of County Treasurer it was a case of the office seeking the man and this was certainly the highest standard of Democratic qualities. Mr. Henke is a man who, though a farmer, has had considerable clerical experience and there is no question but what he would make the people of Wood county proud of. In presenting the name of Mr. Henke to the people the Tribune feels confident that he will never betray the trust that has been imposed upon him, and if elected, he will do his best to give the people an unbiased administration. A vote for Mr. Henke on the 8th of November will be a vote for good government.

Julius Welch.

In presenting the name of Julius Welch as the county candidate for Sheriff of Wood county, the Democrats have chosen wisely. Mr. Welch is a bright young man, a resident of Marshfield, and there is probably no man in the city who is better thought of and has more friends than this candidate for sheriff. Mr. Welch, unlike some of his predecessors, has abundant education to properly fill the office to which he has been nominated, and the people in voting for him and electing him may feel sure that he will discharge the duties of the office in a proper manner. We take great pleasure in presenting the picture of Mr. Welch to our readers and feel sure that he will make an officer that the people of Wood county may point to with pride. Mr. Welch is not a politician in any sense of the word. He has never sought office, and in presenting him to the people of Wood county we feel confident that they will be unable to betray themselves in any way. A vote for him on the 8th of November

WILLIAM E. WHEELAN,
Candidate for District Attorney.

W. E. Wheelan.

William E. Wheelan, our candidate for District Attorney, is one of the most lawyers of Grand Rapids. The object of electing a District Attorney is to have a man in the office who is thoroughly competent to transact the legal business of the county. When the Democrats nominated Mr. Wheelan they put up just such a man. His ability as an attorney is above reproach in any way, and there is no question if a wisser selection could have been made by the party. Mr. Wheelan is a life-long resident of Grand Rapids. It was here he grew to manhood, acquired his education and has for several years been, in business in his home town. During that time he has acquired a large practice and gained the confidence of a large number of the people of Wood county. It is useless to tell the people of Mr. Wheelan's ability for he has already proven himself to be one of our foremost attorneys. We feel confident that the office of District Attorney could not be placed in better hands, and that the Democrats of Wood county have made a wise selection in placing him on their ticket. Vote for Mr. Wheelan for District Attorney and it will be another ballot cast for a thoroughly competent and reliable man.

Chas. S. Whittlesey.

Chas. S. Whittlesey candidate for Clerk of the Circuit Court, has long been a native of Wood county. Although a young man, comparatively, he has been engaged in business for a number of years in Grand Rapids, dealing in real estate, insurance and loans, and during those years has gained the confidence of a large number of the business men in this locality. That Mr. Whittlesey will make a good Clerk of the Court, if elected, goes without saying for he has proven himself a man of bright intellect and thorough methods, one not given to dissipation in any way. We feel confident if the people of Wood county see fit to elect Mr. Whittlesey they will not be disappointed in any way, and it is with confidence we recommend him to our people. Cast your ballot for Mr. Whittlesey and you will have done your duty toward yourself and your neighbor alike.

DR. HENRY A. LATIROP,

Frank Leuschen

Frank Leuschen, the party's nominee for county clerk, is a man whom none of the people of Wood county, no matter what their political bias, need be afraid to vote for. He is a man well qualified to fill the position and there is no question but what he will do so to the satisfaction of all if the people see fit to place him in the office. He has long been a resident of Wood county and is a life long democrat. He is not an office seeker in any sense of the word, the nomination having come to him without any effort on his part. We feel sure in recommending Mr. Leuschen to the readers of the Tribune and the voters in general that we are office had violated the anti-pass law Gov. LaFollette raised a clamor for "additional legislation," and left the offenders in possession of their offices.

When the fact came to light that the corrupt practices act had been violated by his principal supporters, Gov. LaFollette raised a howl for the law's amendment—and did nothing.

Finding that the railroads had granted rebates in violation of the state law, he kept his hand closed until the Republican caucus was called and then began a crusade for more laws to "regulate the corporations."

The governor is now going about the state charging the Democrats with being creatures of the corporations because they refuse to follow his humbugging methods, and the evidence that he has in his possession is being used to further his own proceedings have been brought in court to enforce the law. It is against the laws of Wisconsin for railroads to grant rebates. It is against the law to do various, divers and slanders of other things that are being done every day. Why in the name of all that is good and holy doesn't the governor enforce the law? Why in thunder does he do so much talking and so little doing? Why does he not enforce the laws we already have instead of clamoring for more laws to be broken and trampled under foot? I get dam tired of the everlasting talker, talker, talker of this little governor.

The people of Wisconsin are getting much tried. They have had four years of La Follette, and they have not found the relief that was promised. The have made up their minds that a reform administration that does nothing more substantial for them than to increase their taxes is not a good thing to tie to, and they are going back to the good old days of Gov. Peck days that brought some real reform without so everlasting long much noise.

It was all over, and General Marvin lay under the tree, while Miss Rebecca sat alone in the deserted parlor. Now the burden lay with her alone, and she followed wearily the trail of the years that had brought only trouble and loss.

Jessie stood still in the doorway at sight of the bowed head. She could find no words to say, but she drew Miss Rebecca's hand down and held her close to her strong, young arms. Miss Rebecca lifted a hopeless face, and said, "I do not mean for him. It is for you, Jessie, this old home and a painful ten acres is all that is left, and even that cannot be sold during my lifetime. There is nothing, nothing! I don't talk to me now. I cannot bear it. I must try to think." And Miss Rebecca crept away to her room.

Left to herself, the girl stood looking out toward the clump of five oaks that towered above the general's grave. She remembered that there had always been little economies practiced by Miss Rebecca, and the days when the general would shut himself in with a mass of papers, always after the close of those men from town. Now the end had come, but the old home was still there, even though shorn of its broad acres, and an idea came to her. That night she wrote the letter that went in the northern mail, signed with the boyish scrawl of "J. L. Marvin."

Business was unusually dull in the office of Reppel & Greenleaf, and the morning mail needed instant attention. James Reppel tossed a letter across to his brother John, "Read that, John."

Reppel read.
 "Gentlemen: There is no market for our flowers direct from the garden, and we are unable to sell them. Kindly advise us of the price of the flowers, and we will ship them to you in good condition. I should be glad to receive orders. Respectfully, J. L. MARVIN."

John Reppel laid the letter down and looked up inquiringly. "Might be a good idea. What do you think?"
 "Well, we will be pretty apt to need a large supply in the next forty-eight hours, as that General Marvin will be for more than we can furnish from our own plant."

Ten minutes later the message went out that detailed the household at Bois d'Arc.

Said all available blooms. Letter to follow. Terms guaranteed.

Miss Rebecca was bewildered at the very idea of money to be gained from the profusion that elated in hedge and arbor and over the waste of unkempt gardens, but Jessie rolled the idea over and worked all night until the dawn, when Uncle Reuben drove down to Albina with a wagon load of baskets filled to the brim with fragrant merchandise.

Evening brought the letter that made possibility certainty, and busy days followed for Jessie. More land was leased and a little office constructed in the old weighing room of the gin that now served as a packing room. Miss Rebecca willingly let go the reins of Bois d'Arc into Jessie's hands. Once more Aunt Alma rejoiced in a well-filled pantry, and bit by bit the old border was restored, excepting always the tall, soldierly figure that had moved out from among them forever.

November had come, and a soft haze lay over the sunny fields, and a tinge of frost lurked in the breeze. Jessie lay in the hammock under the pines, her head bowed back, in a rapturous mood, and the bars of sunlight flecking the smooth olive of her painted cheeks with golden light as she swayed back and forth, a picture that held the intruder silent until the crunching of the pine needles beneath his feet brought Jessie to herself. That he was very good to look at was patent at the first glance. The athlete figure, keen, dark eyes and smiling mouth made James Reppel an interesting study to the mind fondle.

"I beg pardon, but is this Bois d'Arc, the Marvin plantation?"
 "Yes; this is Bois d'Arc. I am the manager."
 "You? J. L. Marvin?" Reppel stared blankly. "But we had supposed."
 "That I were a man?" she broke in nervously, then, looking at the card that he handed her, "Mr. Reppel?" and a little later Reppel found himself in the dim old parlor receiving the gentle welcome of Miss Rebecca.

He was carried away with Bois d'Arc and its vagaries of a better time that daily expressed the actual assured position that had been his life motive. Self made from the days of drifting childhood, when the two homeless boys had struggled against the current of the Chicago streets, it had been an uphill fight, with little time for the softer things of life, and here the stately rooms, where the sunlight filtered through the small paneled windows, to fall on faces of dead and gone Marvins, the quiet wainscoted dining room, with its time stained treasures; the white table, with its glitter of silver and glass; the sweetness of flowers and the two gentlemen so different from all the women that he had encountered in the rush of the city—he decided there and then to linger as long as he decently could, answering abstractedly to the running flow of light nonsense that Jessie kept up.

He felt that somehow he had always known that soft voice and rippling laugh.
 He followed her into the garden, where the moonlight gleamed over snowy masses of chrysanthemums that stood in tall ranks. A magic dwell in the winding alleys of that old garden, waited in by the lush fragrance of roses. Desperately, helplessly, he went down before that smiling maiden who talked out of flowers and still of flowers and grew very impatient of his irrelevant replies. At last she ventured, "You expected to consult with 'Mr. Marvin' as to the business for the coming season?"
 Reppel pulled himself together and came out of the clouds. He had forgotten his errand.

"Yes; I had a proposition to make from our firm. You have been our chief source of supply for several months, and we have decided to offer you an interest if you will agree to work under our supervision."
 Jessie drew a long breath.
 Reppel went to his room that night in a state of mind that baffles description and lay for hours gazing out into the white night.

Morning—the plantation hall sent its summons far out into the misty grayness. Alas, the felix of Bois d'Arc had passed to alien hands, but the old bell still swung and lifted its voice, as it had done when in answer to its call the dusky life went forth from the gates to toil for the master of Bois d'Arc. Somewhere away off a clump of hounds responded, and fluids began to fill with the cotton pickers.

Jessie was seated behind the urn as he sat down to Aunt Alma's hot waffles and fried chicken. As he watched the small swarthy hands among the coffee cups the visions of the night came back in full force.

Reppel had no excuse for prolonging his stay, but before Jessie drove him down to Albina he managed to extract an invitation for the holidays from Miss Rebecca. Reppel had touched her strangely with his half-wistful remark, "Christmas is an empty word to me. I have never had a home."

Christmas eve, as Jessie came across the yard from the office, Reppel met her with such honest gladness in face and voice that she forgot her scruples and welcomed him as gladly. A long, happy week, for Jessie, her guard once down, threw her into the spirit of the hour. Reppel found his cramped room less, however, in the person of Charlie Harrington, who was Jessie's student.

"You are comfortably cozy," thought Reppel as the swift days flew. He had never cared for dancing, but it was dull work to stand in the snow while Jessie circled the room in Charlie's arms. But at last the sound of close. Reppel grew desperate. There was only one day left to him. If Miss Rebecca had earned his gratitude before she now had his undying affection in the hour when she pressed Charlie into service to drive her to the next plantation.

It was one of those dreary, midwinter afternoons, and the open fire flickered cheerily. Jessie commenced a furious onslaught with the poker. "Poking a fire is a positive stimulant on a day like this."

"Is it? Let me try it." He took the poker, and they knelt together on the broad hearth. A merry war of words and then a silence that neither of them dared to break. Jessie gazed deep into the heart of the fire, but Reppel's eyes were on the dark curls. He could not see her face. As he dropped the poker she stretched out her hand to find it caught and held—"Jessica!" It was just a whisper, but the rich color went over her face, and the hand fluttered within the strong grasp that held it prisoner as he went on. "I know it is too soon, but I cannot go and leave my story untold. You know that I have loved you from the moment that I first saw you. I believe that I have loved you always. Above and beyond all law of caste, all difference of north and south, somewhere, somehow, you have belonged to me, and I want my own."

Outside the raindrops pattered against the long windows, then the sigh of a breeze as Charlie and Miss Rebecca drove through the big gate. The brown head dropped lower, and the hand in his no longer struggled to escape. Quick to grasp his vantage ground, he drew the slight figure to him. For just the briefest time his lips sought hers; then, flushed and shy, Jessie retreated to the other end of the rug as Miss Rebecca, standing in the open door, read the end of the chapter.

One Way to Win a Wife.
 James Barrie's "Admirable Crichton" has had a counterpart in real life. At least the resemblance is striking. He was a butler who for nearly twenty-five years cleverly managed the affairs of three Englishwomen, even to making their money for them. Through all the years, although he knew how important he was to that little household, he never forgot that he was the butler and always preserved the most respectful attitude toward his mistresses. Suddenly, however, one morning he appeared before the women and "gave notice." He had saved up some money, he said, and wanted a house of his own. The household was appalled at the prospect. Finally one of the women gasped, "Have you met any suitable person?"
 "No, ma'am," answered the butler.

"Not up to now. But I must make it my business to seek her." The three women felt the foundations of their domestic happiness tottering, and in desperation the most "suitable" of the trio asked the butler to marry her. After a pause he accepted her hand in his old respectful manner, and for twenty-five years longer, in the position of master, he stayed in the house where he had been for many years at service.

SHORT WINDED.
 Why Some Persons Become Breathless With Severe Exercise.
 Breathing consists of two rhythmic alternating processes—inspiration, in which the muscles of the chest push their part, and outbreathing, in which the elasticity of the lungs and the weight of the chest force out air. The number of breaths, which varies with the age, is one to every three or four pulse beats. In ordinary breathing only about one-sixth of the air in the lungs is renewed, but in exercise the amount is considerably increased, and the number of breaths multiplied.

In disease such as reduction of lung area the blood is in danger of becoming overcharged with carbonic acid, and the lungs struggle to get rid of it and to bring in more oxygen. Exercise causes a similar change, and if of the right sort and not too long continued, the circulation and breathing are quickened, and the result is good. In severe exercise, such as long continued speed trials, the quickened breathing can no longer cope with its task, so carbonic acid accumulates faster than the heart and the lungs can deal with it, and breathlessness results.

HABERDASHER.
 The Word is Supposed to Mean Things of Little Value.
 The word haberdasher first appears in the language as coming from habertus, the name of a fabric mentioned in the Liber Albus along with wool, and entered, about 1419, a parallel and almost contemporary list has habertasserie.

The word is supposed to mean things of little value—small wares such as buttons and tapes. Sicut dicitur in the Leendicke haberbask—trumpery, pedlar's wares. In a register of burials of 1565 we have one Henry, son of Michael Waddins, London, haberdasher of batts, probably this being the first material of which hats were made.

Chambers gives another meaning to the word. He says it is derived from the ancient name for a neck cloth, berdash, which is derived from beard, and tache, a covering.
 Habertus was originally a cloth of a particular kind, the width of which was settled by Magna Charta. Hence a haberdasher was the seller of habertasserie.—London Answers.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.
 No one who is acquainted with its good qualities can be surprised at the great popularity of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It not only cures colds and grip effectually and permanently, but prevents these diseases from resulting in pneumonia. It is also a certain cure for croup. Whooping cough is not dangerous when this remedy is given. It contains no opium or other harmful substance, can be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. It is also pleasant to take. When all of these facts are taken into consideration it is not surprising that people in foreign lands, as well as at home, esteem this remedy very highly and very few are willing to take any other having once used it. —When Mrs. Geo. Putnam went to see Dr. McElwee, the Chicago specialist, she declared that it was for no purpose of getting relief, since she knew that was impossible, but she just "wanted to see if the doctor agreed with the other doctors who said nothing could be done for her." When Dr. McElwee said he could cure her, Mrs. Putnam doubted greatly, but when the doctor told her that she would be convinced within five days that she was getting well if she took his treatment, she consented to try it. Almost miraculously, it seemed to her and Mr. Putnam, all the terrible pains passed away, and as well as the awful dread of cancer, which seemed to be the trouble since the doctors couldn't help her any. Now she is well, eating everything, doing her own work and almost forgetful that any such disease as cancer ever threatened her. Dr. McElwee states that cancer of the stomach is nearly always preceded by years and years of slight symptoms, gradually growing more obstinate and painful, of dyspepsia, and that is the time to effect a cure.

Nelson Withdraws.

V. G. Nelson, who was the candidate for register of deeds on the republican ticket, has withdrawn, and the name of W. S. Powell has been put on the ticket to fill the vacancy.

The halfbreeds have indeed made a great mess of this business. They first incurred the enmity of all the republicans of the county by turning down the man that was wanted in the office and putting in a person who had no political aspirations, or any desire to hold political office. Then they tried to square themselves by putting the name of A. B. Corey on the ticket, but Mr. Corey fooled them by refusing to become a candidate. Then they thought they would carry them as they were, but now Mr. Nelson has withdrawn, leaving them with a man on the ticket who is known to the people of Grand Rapids only from the fact that he has been trying to sell them some mining stock during the past few weeks.

Truly, they are in a bad way. Why Nelson withdrew is not known, but it is supposed that he became disgusted with the whole affair, and nobody can blame him for it.

A Weak Argument.

The halfbreeds of the county must indeed be getting scared. The Marshallfield News, in its last issue, in speaking of the candidacy of Amos E. Germer as the democratic candidate for member of assembly says: "That he has been promised the support of the stalwarts no one need doubt, and that the will have the fervent prayers and financial backing of the railroads there can be no question."

If there is any man on the republican ticket, from governor down to can ticket, who has a cleaner record than A. E. Germer we would like to hear from the News concerning the matter. Now the editor of the News knows Mr. Germer's record and he knows that it is nothing to be ashamed of. He knows that he could not be bought by a railroad company any easier than the man they are running for the same office. Knowing this, we consider it rather a cheap piece of political writing on his part to try to influence voters by insinuating that a candidate is not on the square.

However, it is a well known fact that they are scared, badly scared. In fact, when Winch was nominated at the convention there the prominent republicans that if the democrats put up a man whom the people had confidence in that he would defeat the republican nominee without a struggle. Now they are bracing up their courage by maligning the democratic candidate. These halfbreeds papers stoop to almost anything to gain their end.

Why She Couldn't.

The wife of an uptown doctor recently had as a visitor a child of five, a quaint, old fashioned youngster. The child's snail became untied, and she asked her how to tie it.

"Why can't you tie it yourself?" she was asked.

"No, ma'am," answered the child. "And why not?"

"Because I'm in front of it."—Philadelphia Ledger.
